EVERY Historian has had occasion to regret that so much ill-requited labor, if not positive loss, both of time and money, should have been entailed upon him, through want of information as to the source whence, with the greatest ease and with the least liability to error, he could have drawn his facts and illustrations. Often has he found that his exertions merely served to open some outer galleries, indicating the existence of a hidden depository of treasure to which they led, but which to him was inaccessible ; and in doubt as to its extent and actual character, he has felt disposed to relinquish his undertaking in despair of giving to his work the completeness or the value he designed.

To relieve the inquirer into the history of New Jersey from much of this labor and attendant disappointment, is the object of this volume ; which, in its present form and dimensions, bears but a slight similitude to what was first projected : and its character and aims, as well as the difficulties which had to be surmounted in its preparation, may best be illustrated by a narrative of the events connected therewith, from its first inception to its publication.

In 1841 the State of New York, recognizing the duty of securing to its citizens the possession, if possible, of an unbroken record of incidents connected with the rise and progress of their great and prosperous Commonwealth, commissioned Mr. JOHN ROMEYN BRODHEAD to proceed to Europe for the purpose of procuring originals or copies of all papers relating to its history, that might be found in the State Paper Offices of England, Holland and France ; and for three years that gentleman assiduously devoted himself to the task assigned him, enriching the archives of his native State with a large and valuable collection of public documents, without which, not only its own history, but also that of several other States of the Union, would have remained very imperfectly understood.

A correspondence with Mr. Brodhead while in Europe having made it evident that no better opportunity would probably ever be afforded, to obtain information which had long been desired relative to the official documents existing in the public depositories in England, referring to New Jersey, it was thought that, could their attention be properly directed to the importance of the measure, the Legislators of the State might be induced to emulate, to some extent, the patriotic and liberal course of their New York contemporaries, by engaging Mr. Brodhead to make the necessary researches in their behalf.

The co-operation of Mr. WILLIAM PATERSON, Member of the Assembly from Middlesex County, having been enlisted, the following Resolution was offered for the consideration of that Body on 31st January, 1843 :—

“Resolved, That a select committee of three be appointed to inquire into the expediency of authorizing the Governor to ascertain through the Agent of the State of New York, at present in England, procuring copies of documents referring to the early history of that State, what is the character and extent, and what would be the probable cost of obtaining copies of similar documents in the English Archives referring to New Jersey.”

This resolution on the 8th February was referred to a Special Committee, but it was so near the close of the session that no report was made.

The ensuing autumn Governor HAINES, in his Annual Message to the Legislature, alluded to the subject in appropriate terms, and urged the adoption of such measures as were contemplated by the resolution offered at the previous session. This portion of the Message having been referred to the Committee on the Judiciary in the House of Assembly, a report was received from them on the 16th January, 1844, as follows :—

“ Report of the Judiciary Committee on the subject of the Colonial Records of New Jersey. January 16, 1844.

“ The Committee to which was referred the resolution instructing an inquiry to be made ‘ into the expediency of authorizing the Governor to ascertain, through the agent of the State of New York, at present in England, procuring documents referring to the early history of New York, what is the character and extent, and what would be the probable cost of obtaining copies of similar documents in the English archives, relative to New Jersey,’ and also that portion of the Governor’s message referring to the colonial records of New Jersey, would report the following, as the result of their investigations :—

“ The committee are persuaded that the nature of the inquiry, as contained in the resolution under which they act, and the importance of the subject which they have had under consideration, will commend themselves not only to the favorable notice of both branches of the Legislature, but will also be a matter of general interest to the people of the State. There are many transactions connected with the early settlement and history of New Jersey, which, from inadequacy of authentic information, or from a want of means wherewith to obtain the necessary documents and papers, the historian has been unable to record. Those events occurred during the period in which New Jersey was a colony of Great Britain, and the memorials of them, or so much as may be necessary to complete the chain of our imperfect history, are to be found on file in the different departments of the British Government. It is but natural and reasonable to suppose, from the connection which so long subsisted between the colonies and the mother country, that many records, perhaps in a great measure useless to those in whose possession they are kept only to moulder and decay, are lodged in those depositories, that could throw much light around the dimness of our early political existence ; and every effort to procure correct and accurate information respecting those papers, cannot but be regarded with general approbation. Other States have paved the way in this enterprise and those exertions, and surely it is not only proper, but it should also be the pride of New Jersey, to emulate the examples of her sister States. It is, perhaps, a matter of regret that an association, similar to the Historical Society of New York, has not been formed in New Jersey, to collect materials and obtain information on this subject ; but even if there had been such an institution, its efforts would have been useless and unavailing without the aid and assistance of the State. Nevertheless, through its agency, the attention of the Legislature might have been directed to this object at an earlier period, and that body been induced to have taken at least some preliminary steps in the investigation. The facilities which might have been derived from such a source, and which would have been of material importance in enabling the committee to make a full and satisfactory inquiry, have been kindly furnished by a citizen of this State, who has devoted much time and industry to the examination of the history of New Jersey, and to whose researches the committee are indebted for whatever of interest or value is embodied in this report.

"Until within a few years, the English offices, wherein these records have long been slumbering unnoticed, and almost unknown, have been closed to the American historian. But they are now no longer sealed depositories: their doors have been opened, and they are the source from whence the circumstances connected with the settlement and early history of our country can be more perfectly understood and better known. A vast collection of documents, forming an almost unbroken series of historical papers, from the earliest period of English discovery and settlement in America to the close of the war of the Revolution, are there preserved.

"In the 'State Paper Office' is found the correspondence between the Ministry and the Governors of the several Colonies, while yet they were integral parts of the British Empire, and also communications, to and from other officers, upon civil and military affairs. To this office have recently been transferred, also, the papers of the 'Board of Trade,' which succeeded the old office of 'Lords Commissioners for Trade and Plantations,' comprising the copies of the Colonial laws, journals of the several Legislatures, and all such documents as relate to legislation, courts, Indian affairs, commerce, manufactures, and many other details of government, as were transmitted to England. The 'Privy Council Office' contains the instructions and commissions of the Governors, the decisions of the Council on the Colonial laws in cases of appeal, &c. All these papers are well preserved, are pronounced very complete by those who have examined them, and constitute an invaluable mine of materials for the elucidation of American history.

"It may very properly be asked, is it not the duty of the General Government to procure copies of all these documents for the use of the people of the United States? for every individual has some interest in their contents. Not trusting, however, to the action of Congress, several of the States, as has been previously observed, have themselves entered upon the work of collecting, for their citizens, the memorials of their origin. North Carolina has taken the preparatory steps of obtaining lists of the papers referring to her history. Georgia and South Carolina, and individuals in behalf of other States, it is believed, have completed their researches, and procured copies. New York, as is befitting her extent, her resources, and the elevated rank she has ever held, has pursued, and is still pursuing, her examinations in a thorough and systematic manner, which will place the State in possession of almost every document of value connected with its provincial history; and the Legislature of that State has a standing committee on Colonial Records, whose business it is to recommend to that body such measures and appropriations as may be necessary to facilitate the accomplishment of the object. The attention of her agent, J. R. Brodhead, Esq., has been directed to searches in France and Holland, as well as in Great Britain, and it is a matter of congratulation that, from the union which existed between New York and New Jersey, as component parts of the Province of New Netherlands, and the subsequent close connection of interests, the labors of our sister State necessarily enlighten our early history as well as her own.

“While these States and others have, through their historical societies or the enterprise of their Legislative bodies, thus greatly lessened the labors of the general historian, New Jersey has done comparatively nothing, although her history is as rich in incidents as almost any other State in the Union. It is true her Legislature have shown a commendable and praiseworthy spirit in reprinting the minutes and proceedings of the Provincial Congress that framed the Constitution, and this, and the recent geological survey, which she caused to be made, cannot but be regarded as testimonials of her desire as well to develop the natural resources of the State, as to rescue its early history from oblivion. But there is still a wide field open. There are dark pages in that history, and mysterious clouds which cover the origin and growth of many political measures and opinions, the influence of which was not confined exclusively to the past; and the records which may enlighten the former and dispel the latter, in all probability exist in these depositories; for, so far as they refer to the history of New Jersey, these papers are an unbroken field of research. No historian has ever illustrated it by reference to them, except Chalmers, and he only to a very limited extent and in a very imperfect manner. The historian Grahame, writing to a gentleman in this country in 1840, lamented the ‘woful voids in the early histories of Rhode Island, Maryland, and New Jersey;’ and so far as New Jersey is concerned, those voids will remain, unless the documentary evidence existing in England be secured.

“The Provincial history of New Jersey is divided into two periods: the first comprising the Proprietary Government, and extending to the year 1702; the second from 1702 to the Revolutionary war, during which the Royal Provincial Government existed. Referring to the first period, there is a most valuable collection of documents in ‘The Grants, Concessions, and Original Constitutions of the Province of New Jersey,’ compiled principally from the Proproprietary Records, under the authority of the Assembly, and published in 1758, by virtue of an Act of the Legislature. And the proprietary offices of East and West Jersey contain, in addition, much valuable information; but there are numerous chasms, for the filling up of which they afford few, if any, materials. It is possible that the papers transferred to the Lords Commissioners of Trade and Plantations, on the surrender of the Government to the Crown, in 1702; will furnish these. The despatches of the Governors are, alone, of great value, for only five or six have ever been rendered available in illustrating the events of that period. It may well be supposed that, under such circumstances, there is yet much to be learned relative to the progress of the Province from year to year; and however local the tendency of such researches may be, they cannot be otherwise than serviceable generally, for the most trivial circumstance frequently constitutes the all-important link in a chain of events leading to results most extensively felt.

“Of the second period, (eighty years in duration,) there are comparatively few official documents, other than the minutes of the Legislature and the records of the Courts. Very little is known of the character and extent of the correspondence between the Governors and the Ministry, and, without some more definite knowledge respecting it, the true relations existing between New Jersey and the mother country, during the whole of that period, must, of necessity, be imperfectly understood.

“In the preface to his impartial and eloquent history of the United States, the late Mr. Grahame thus alludes to the annals of the country in whose elevation among the nations of the earth he took so great an interest: ‘There’ never has been a people on whose character their own historical recollections were calculated to exercise a more animating or salutary influence * * * *. The origin of the nation, and the rise and progress of its institutions, may be distinctly ascertained; and the people enabled to acquire a complete and accurate conception of the character of their earliest national ancestors, as well as of every succeeding generation through which the inheritance of the national name and fortunes has devolved upon themselves * * * *. A more elevated model of human character could hardly be proposed to the imitation of the inhabitants of New England, Pennsylvania, and some others of the North American States, than that which their own early history bequeaths to them. They will cherish a generous and profitable self-respect, while they comply with the canon of Divine wisdom, ‘to remember the days of old, and consider the years of many generations.’ If we thus estimate the advantages of a recorded lineage, thus revere the founders of the commonwealth, and would thus profit by the consideration of their history, it behooves us to seek the preservation of every memorial of ‘the days of old’ that may present to this and future generations, in their true colors, every fact, every motive, and every action, bearing upon the establishment, in this Western Hemisphere, of those principles of civil and religious liberty upon which are based the Government and institutions under whose protection we now exist.

"In the foregoing remarks, the committee trust it has been made sufficiently apparent, that the due illustration of the early history of the State calls for some measures whereby the documents adverted to may be secured; and the propriety of some action at the present time will now be noticed.

"The agent of New York, now being engaged in the selection and transcription of papers for that State, the appointment of a special agent to carry out the views of the Legislature, and the consequent increased expense, may be avoided by securing his services; as it is presumed, from the close connection which once existed between the two Provinces, already alluded to, he has in some measure become aware of the number and character of the documents referring to New Jersey.

"It must also be borne in mind, that from the repeated applications made for access to the English archives, or from some other cause, the request of the State of New York was not acceded to in a way to offer any hope of a satisfactory examination of the papers, and considerable delay was experienced before the objections were removed. It is therefore wise to avail ourselves of the opportunity now offered, lest at some future period less courtesy may be extended, and obstacles be presented that may not be so readily removed.

"While the committee are satisfied of the value of these historical documents, they do not feel authorized to exceed the bounds of the inquiry with which they are charged. The information in their possession does not enable them to form any conception of the extent of the papers, and consequently of the expense that would be incurred in procuring copies. But they would recommend that preparatory steps be taken to obtain lists, or indexes, having reference to the character and length of each paper, and where deposited; a measure complete in itself, inasmuch as the transcription of selected papers is only permitted by authorized clerks in the several offices, and attended with beneficial effects even should nothing else be done.

"With such indexes, greater discrimination may be exercised in the selection hereafter, of such documents of which copies may be desired; or should the intervention of the Legislature stop here, which the committee hardly consider probable, they will give to every citizen requisite information of any documentary evidence there existing, referring to any fact in our history. This course has been pursued by the State of North Carolina, the Legislature of which, during the last year, caused their indexes to be printed for the use of the people, in itself a valuable aid to the historian, in matters relating to that Province.

"The committee are aware that, in this investigation, they have exceeded the usual limits of a Legislative report, and it may, perhaps, be thought that they have been unnecessarily long and minute, but they could not go into a satisfactory examination of the subject of inquiry without entering somewhat in detail into a statement of the points and facts necessary to a full understanding and illustration of its importance. This is the first time that any definite action or recommendation has been had with regard to this matter; and if the Legislature deem it inexpedient to carry out the views of the committee at this time, which it is hoped will not be the case, some future Legislature, if disposed to act, may have the benefit of the light and evidence with which this committee have been furnished to prepare this report.

"With these views, the committee would recommend the subjoined resolutions for adoption.

"Resolved, (Council concurring,) That the Governor be authorized to obtain, through J. R. Brodhead, Historical Agent of the State of New York, at present in England, engaged in procuring copies of papers referring to the history of that State, or through the agency of some other qualified person resident of London—

"A list of all documents and papers in the English offices referring to the history of the Provinces of East and West Jersey, of dates between 1664 and 1702; indicating the purport, length, and place of deposit of each paper.

"A similar list of such documents and papers referring to the Province of New Jersey from the year 1702 to the Revolutionary war, and

"An estimate of the probable cost of transcribing said documents for the use of the State.

"Resolved, That one thousand dollars be appropriated to carry out the foregoing resolutions."

As the proposed measure had been received with general favor by the Press throughout the State, and been approved of by the most intelligent and eminent citizens, it caused much surprise, when, on the 10th February, the resolutions reported by the Committee failed to secure the approbation of the Assembly.*

In January, 1845, Governor Haines again solicited the attention of the legislature to the subject, and it was referred in the Council to a Special Committee, which, on the 25th March ensuing, submitted a report adopting the views and recommendations of the Assembly's Committee of the preceding legislature, with the additional suggestion, that the inquiries relative to the historical memorials of the State should not be confined to the archives of England alone, but be extended to the public depositories of the other States of the Union ; but no better result attended this movement than the other, although throughout the State there was a growing sense of the need of fuller and more accurate information respecting its early history.

It was on the 27th February of this year, 1845, that a few gentlemen assembled at Trenton and framed a Constitution for a Historical Society, an association which has rendered essential service in rescuing from oblivion the fleeting memorials of the past, and in fostering among the prominent citizens of different parts of the State that community of feeling which is the best promotive of a common patriotism. The attention of the members of the Society was naturally directed to the measure before the Legislature, and as especial preservators of our history, they presented a memorial referring to it at the session of 1846 ; for which some remarks of Governor STRATTON, in his inaugural address, seemed to promise a favorable reception.

Being referred to a Special Committee in the Assembly on the 19th February, the following Report was made to that Body through Mr. CANNON, the Chairman :

“ Report of the Special Committee of Assembly on the subject of our Colonial Documents in England : February 19, 1846.

“ The committee to whom were referred the memorials from the New Jersey Historical Society and numerous citizens, respecting the documents connected with the history of the State, at present in the archives of England, or of the other States of the Union, would respectfully state :—

“ That after such investigation as they have been enabled to make, they have become satisfied of the propriety and practicability of the measures asked for by the petitioners.

“ The aim of the memorialists is to secure such action on the part of the legislature as will insure the possession of copies of all papers of importance, necessary for the full illustration of our history, which may be at present in the archives of the several States, and the obtainment of accurate information respecting the character, extent and place of deposit of similar historic materials in England.

"At different sessions since that of eighteen hundred and forty-two and forty-three, the last-named measure has been presented for the consideration of the legislature, having been twice recommended to its favorable notice by Governor Haines, and by the present Executive, in his inaugural address; and two reports thereon have been made, both projects having been referred to in that which was presented to the Senate at its last session. A reference to these reports will render unnecessary as particular a detail of the circumstances under which the application is made as would otherwise be required, and your committee will, therefore, as briefly as possible, present the grounds on which they would ask for the favorable consideration of the prayer of the memorialists.

"Throughout the country, for some years past, a most commendable desire has been manifested to preserve such of its early annals as have escaped the destroying influences of time and accident, from further detriment, and a number of the States, through their historical societies, special agencies, or individual exertion of their citizens, have been actively engaged in securing, in every quarter, the materials essential to a complete development of every portion of their past history.

"To the English archives special attention has been directed; for from the relations existing between Great Britain and America, before the Revolution, the various offices of that country became necessarily the depositories of all the most important legislative, judicial, commercial and statistical documents referring to the several provinces. Georgia and South Carolina have secured their share of these papers; North Carolina has obtained a full index to hers; Virginia and Massachusetts (perhaps others) are understood to be preparing for similar examinations, and New York has recently obtained a mass of documents, not only from England, but also from France and Holland, almost an unbroken series, illustrating her history from the settlement of the country to the war of independence. Why should not the example set by these enlightened States, be imitated by New Jersey?

"Much of the whole period of the provincial existence of New Jersey is an unexplored field of historical inquiry, and it has remained so far too long. We are too apt to consider the history of the State as dating from the time when, in common with the other colonies, she threw off her allegiance to Great Britain; but the war which effected the independence of the country was the termination of a chain of events, the links of which bind together every portion of our early history; and the 'why and wherefore' of the Revolution can best be discovered by an attentive examination into the matters connected with the progress of the settlement throughout the continent. We may erect monuments to perpetuate the memory of battle-fields, but we should also observe proper precaution to preserve the memory of those who first promulgated and upheld those views of public liberty and inherent rights, for which those battle-fields were discolored by the blood of patriots.

"It seems particularly appropriate for New Jersey, at the present time, to adopt some measures for the preservation of her past history, commencing, as she is, a new era in her political existence.

"Every individual who feels an honest pride in tracing his descent from an enterprising and virtuous ancestry, through whom a valued estate has been secured, feels also an interest in the events that marked their course to prosperity and honor, and gathers from their history the lessons of wisdom and experience: and so should it be with a citizen of the State. He has inherited a patrimony his own arm procured not for him; it was not by the sweat of his brow that the wilderness was turned into the fruitful field; it was not by his enterprise that the broad land has been filled with thriving villages and populous cities; nor was it by his foresight that his civil and religious liberties were secured to him. He has taken possession of his inheritance, and finds himself surrounded by blessings which render the responsibilities of occupancy and improvement far more weighty; and to fit himself for his duties and to enable him to discharge the debt of gratitude he owes to the fathers of the State, a recurrence certainly should be had to the sentiments and measures of the men, their characters, and the emergencies they triumphed over in creating, under God, for him, the privileges and advantages he enjoys.

"A due degree of watchfulness over the safety of all memorials of the past should undoubtedly be exercised by the legislature, and the documents which have been referred to are deserving of special notice, containing as they do by far the most important (in some cases the only) records of our history during the periods to which they relate. In them may be the correspondence of the Proprietary Governors, and other papers of which nothing is known at present, referring to that interesting portion of our history which preceded the erection of New Jersey into a regal government; but they certainly comprise all the official documents (excepting the minutes of the legislature, the records of the courts, and a few others of an important character, which the State may possess) connected with the administration of the public affairs of New Jersey from seventeen hundred and two to seventeen hundred and seventy-six. It was justly remarked in the report of the judiciary committee in eighteen hundred and forty-four, that 'very little is known of the character and extent of the correspondence between the governors and the ministry, and without some more definite knowledge respecting it, the true relations existing between New Jersey and the mother country during the whole of that period, must, of necessity, be imperfectly understood.'

"If these views of your committee as to the value of these papers are correct, the question arises how can the information they contain be made available to the New Jersey statesman or historian? Some of the difficulties attendant upon the decision of this question, are stated by the late Executive of the State. 'One plan is,' said Governor Haines, in his message of January, eighteen hundred and forty-five, 'to employ an agent there, to procure copies of such documents as may interest us. But great difficulty will be found in communicating to him what we need. To send an agent expressly, according to another plan proposed, must be attended with very considerable expense.'

"The committee do not consider the prayer of the memorials referred to them, to extend to the obtainment of these papers or of copies, but of definite information respecting them; and this they conceive can be procured without the expense of a special agent, as is proved by the success of North Carolina; a list of her papers having been obtained through the intervention of the Minister of the United States to that country. The course they would recommend is plainly set forth in the report made to the Senate at the last session, as follows:—

" 'The committee are informed that no one is permitted to perform any clerical duty in connection with the State paper offices, excepting the persons attached thereto, and therefore, as any list or memorandum respecting the New Jersey papers would have to be obtained from the regular officers, subject to the payment of the usual fees, it would only be requisite for the executive to designate the form in which that list or memorandum should be made out, to have an analysis of each enumerated document. The specific character of the lists would necessarily enhance the value of the services rendered; but possession of them would enable the authorities of the State to determine which papers were of importance, which of them obtainable on this side of the Atlantic, and otherwise discriminate judiciously how far the process of transcribing at any future period should be carried, and thereby save to the State, in all probability, an expenditure of large sums for copies of papers obtainable elsewhere at a cheaper rate.'

"Your committee believe that such a course would supersede all necessity for employing a special agent to procure copies of these papers at any future period, should that measure be eventually adopted. It is desirable that the legislature should avail itself of the opportunity now afforded to obtain access to these papers; for independent of the danger which must ever attend the existence of such perishable memorials, they are held at the will of a foreign government, which at any time may close them to us effectually and forever.

"In relation to the historic memorials in possession of the other States, referring to New Jersey, your committee would remark that in the archives of New York in particular, there are many of special interest. From the discovery of the country until sixteen hundred and sixty-four, and subsequently in sixteen hundred and seventy-four, New Jersey was under the domination of the Dutch, and the records of those periods, or as many as have been preserved, can only be found at Albany. From seventeen hundred and two until seventeen hundred and thirty-eight, New York and New Jersey were associated under the same governor, and their close relation created a community of interest in various documents, the originals or copies of which are now in the office of the Secretary of the former State, as well as others relating to matters which gave occasion to correspondence between the two governments at other periods. Papers of similar import may exist in the archives of other States, and as your committee believe that copies of them might be obtained at little expense, it seems to them desirable that the legislature should adopt measures to secure them.

With these views the subjoined resolutions are submitted and their adoption recommended:

Resolved by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the Governor be authorized to obtain, through the intervention of the Minister of the United States in London, and such other persons as may be necessary, from the proper officers of the State Paper Department of England, a list or lists of all documents and papers in the English archives, referring to the history of the provinces of East and West Jersey; of dates between sixteen hundred and sixty-four and seventeen hundred and two, indicating the purport, length and place of deposit of each paper, and a similar list of such documents and papers referring to the province of New Jersey, from seventeen hundred and two to seventeen hundred and eighty-three, with an estimate of the probable cost of transcribing such documents for the use of the State.

Resolved, That the sum of ——— dollars be appropriated to carry out the foregoing resolution.

Resolved, That the Governor be authorized to apply to the proper authorities of the State of New York, and of such other States as may possess such historic materials, for permission to have copies made, by proper persons by him appointed, of such documents or papers, existing in their archives, as refer to the history of New Jersey; and that a sum, not exceeding ——— dollars, is hereby appropriated towards defraying the expense that may be thereby incurred; the said transcripts or copies to be deposited in the office of the Secretary of State.

Again were the friends of the project disappointed. Requiring a majority of two-thirds, the resolutions failed,* and no better success attended their efforts the ensuing year. The Historical Society, in consequence, determined to cease their importunities, and endeavor to effect their object through private enterprise. A committee was therefore raised on 29th May, 1847, "to obtain subscription from members and others interested in the History of the State, towards a fund to be expended in obtaining an Analytical List of the Colonial Documents to be deposited in the Library of the Society ;" but at the request of some of the members, another application to the Legislature was authorized on the 16th September ; and a Committee, of which General WALL was made Chairman, was charged with that duty.*

This Committee's efforts proving unavailing up to the 18th January, 1849, the Society, on that day, at a meeting held in Trenton during the session of the legislature, after some discussion in the presence of many of the members, appointed another committee, consisting of Messrs. R. S. Field and W. A. Whitehead, and Rev. Dr. Murray, authorized to urge upon the representatives of the people the adoption of the wished-for measures without delay, as the presence in London of Mr. Brodhead, the former Agent of New York, as Secretary of Legation from the United States, and of Mr. Henry Stevens, who possessed peculiar facilities for obtaining access to the State Paper offices—both of them honorary members of the Society, and interested in its success,—promised results that might not be secured at another time.

The gentlemen of the Committee were so favored as to be allowed an opportunity of addressing the members of both Houses, and others, in the Assembly Chamber on the evening of 13th February, and earnestly advocated the proposed measures as called for ; not only for the purposes of the historian, but for those of the Statesman and Jurist as well ; the records of the Legislative, Executive and Judicial Department of the State all being incomplete, and requiring elucidation from the English archives ;—but no action was taken upon the subject ;—the Committees to whom it was referred making no reports. One further attempt was made during the session of 1850, to induce the Legislature to procure copies of their missing minutes, which were known to be in England, but the House of Assembly gave no attention to the subject, and in the Senate only two votes were recorded in its favor.

It was evident that private enterprise and patriotism must be resorted to if success were desired ; and the late Hon. JAMES GORE KING, then a most efficient member of the Society, generously leading the way by a proffer of one-fifth of the entire expense, a sufficient sum was soon secured, and the services of Mr. Henry Stevens engaged. His letter of instructions was as follows :—

TO HENRY STEVENS, ESQ., LONDON.

NEW JERSEY HISTORICAL SOCIETY, }
NEWARK, May 10th, 1849. }

DEAR SIR,

As you have entered upon the task of procuring an Analytical Index to the documents and other historical materials relating to New Jersey, which exist in the State Paper Office and Public Libraries in England, it may facilitate your operations to state, briefly, what information we already have respecting our papers in the former depository, and what portions of our history more particularly require elucidation.

Although you may be acquainted with their extent, it may prove useful for me to say, here, that by a letter from Mr. Brodhead, addressed to Mr. King, in September 1847, we learn there are in the "State Paper Office" series of papers, seventeen volumes entitled "New Jersey," containing documents from 1728 to 1782—a hiatus occurring between 1752 and 1762. Other sets of volumes consequently have to be examined, such as the series entitled "Plantation General" containing documents from 1760 to 1784 :—another similarly entitled, containing documents from 1766 to 1781 : one entitled "Governors in America," covering the years 1743 to 1763, and another entitled "America," containing documents from 1620 to 1762. Each of these sets consist of several volumes, and it is quite probable something will be found in all of them relating to New Jersey.

We learn also, that in the "Board of Trade" there are thirty-eight volumes containing "New Jersey" papers—eleven of them containing the original documents received from the Provincial Authorities and others, from 1702 to 1775—six containing the despatches from the Board to those Officers—and the remaining twenty-one consisting of the Minutes of the Council and Assembly from 1703 to 1774, and of the Laws, Acts, and Votes of the Province, during that period. And besides these there are ninety-nine volumes containing papers of dates from 1638 to 1782, under the titles "Plantations General" and "Proprieties," which should be examined for any references to New Jersey they may contain. Regarding the procurement of the Minutes of the Council and Assembly (for it may not be known to you that the State has no records of the Proceedings of the Council, and that the Minutes of the Assembly are imperfect) as a work which the State Legislature should, and probably will, undertake, it is not expected that any of the Funds raised by the Society will be devoted to the examination of the volumes containing these minutes more than may be sufficient to ascertain their completeness. The same remark will apply to the copies of the laws, of which an abstract must eventually be obtained by the State to supply the deficiencies in the Archives, particularly in reference to the private acts, of the effect of which, we have, in most instances, no knowledge other than may be derived from their titles.

The History of New Jersey while under English rule is very clearly divided into two eras—one, extending from the grant of the country to the Duke of York, in 1664, to the surrender of the government to Queen Anne, 1701, or the Proprietary Era: and the other, extending from 1701 to the Revolution, or the Provincial Era.

Of the first, or Proprietary Era, we have some papers among the New York Documents procured by Mr. Brodhead, and as it is presumed that such as he copied can readily be identified in the State Paper Office, the time and expenditure required to note them may be saved. All others referring to that period are of great importance from the paucity of such historic memorials on this side of the Atlantic.

With the exception of one or two letters by Philip Carteret, those of Lawrie in "Scot's Model," and one of Governor Hamilton's in my possession, I am not aware that any despatches from the Proprietary Governors to their Constituents in Great Britain are known to us; and very few either of the letters or orders sent to the Governors have been preserved or are now to be found.

It is not probable that these much coveted documents exist in the State Paper Office, as we have no warrant for believing that on the transfer of the government to the Crown any papers were surrendered by the proprietaries; but it is hoped that many interesting documents of a more general character may be met with, in the shape of reports relating to the soil and waters, and in the correspondence which must have preceded and been connected with the negotiations for the surrender.

Although the Board of Proprietors of East Jersey endeavored to recover some of their missing papers, yet, from want of promptness, their exertions were not attended with success. The following item may, however, even at this late period, lead to some discoveries. A Mrs. Margaret Bowles, under date of Feb. 1st, 1738-9, informed the Board that she had "in her custody the Register Book and Book of Orders for the Governors and Proprietors, but thinks it not advisable to part with them—being other People's concerns." But no attention seems to have been paid to the subject until 1767, when a committee was appointed to apply, through the Agent of the Province, to Mr. Humphrey Bowles, or any other person, for the books; but they were never obtained.

How the books got into the possession of the Bowles Family is not stated; but they may have been connected with Wm. Dockwra, the Proprietaries Register. Some of his or their descendants might yet be found possessing documents of interest to the State. All, no matter of what character, connected with this period, will, it is hoped, be diligently sought and receive your particular attention.

Of the second, or Provincial Era, we have some items of intelligence among the New York papers, but they are comparatively of minor import.

With the exception of two or three intercepted despatches of Governor Franklin, and a portion of the correspondence of Governor Morris (the dates of which are specified in the accompanying sheet in order to save you the trouble of noting the despatches themselves when met with,) we have no knowledge of the extent or character of the communications which passed between the Governors of the Province and the Departments in England, so that there is scarcely a paper of any consequence (with the exceptions stated) connected with this period that we should not like to know the contents of.

So far as I can learn, we are almost entirely barren of statistical information respecting the commerce, population, and productions of the Province; so that documents throwing any light upon these topics will deserve your particular attention. And many of the messages of the Governors, communicated by them to the Ministry, not having been entered upon the minutes of the Council and Assembly, it is desirable that they should be noted with some particularity as but few of them were ever published. There must have been, at different times, in the possession of the descendants of those who acted as agents for the Province or the Board of Proprietors, a large quantity of valuable papers. Ferdinand John Paris, particularly, who was a very active and efficient agent of the Proprietors for many years, prior to and during Governor Belcher's administration, must have left papers of great interest. Richard Partridge, Joseph Sherwood, Henry Wilmot, and one or two others whose names I do not now recollect, acted as the agents of the Province at different periods, and could their descendants be reached, valuable discoveries might be made.

Whether this is practicable, you alone, on the spot, can determine. I merely draw your attention to the subject, confident that if any thing can be done in the premises, your exertions will not be wanting.

At the instance of the Society I wrote two or three letters to our Consul at Paris, about two years ago, requesting his co-operation in discovering the place of deposit of the papers of Governor Franklin, which are represented to have been taken by his son to Paris, and to have been there as late as 1818, in the possession of his widow. From some unexplained cause I have never received any answer, and if through any correspondent of yours in Paris, the inquiry could be made, an important service would be rendered the Society. From the Governor's long administration of the affairs of New Jersey, it is thought many papers of importance would be found among those taken by him from the State, should they yet be in existence.

It has been a matter of deep regret that we have no portraits of the early Proprietors and Fathers of New Jersey, and it would be exceedingly gratifying if you in the progress of your researches could discover likenesses, engraved or otherwise, of Sir George Carteret, Sir John Berkley, or any other of the early Governors or settlers of the province.

I would respectfully ask you to communicate to us from time to time the progress making in the work intrusted to you, and any farther information you may desire will be furnished with pleasure by

Dear Sir,

Yours very truly,

W. A. WHITEHEAD,

Corresponding Secretary.

HENRY STEVENS, Esq., &c., &c., LONDON.

P. S. I would add that the information the Society wishes the List or Index to embody, will consist of the Place of Deposit—Date—Character—Summary of Contents, and Estimated length, in folios, of each Document examined.

Mr. Stevens having industriously prosecuted his researches, the Committee charged with the administration of the Fund provided for the procurement of the Index, had the pleasure, on the 11th Sept., 1851, of exhibiting to the Society nine quarto cases, covered with blue morocco, and having locks and keys, containing over eighteen hundred separate cards, each containing an abstract of some paper relating to New Jersey, beautifully engrossed, the cards being arranged chronologically, and each case having the first and last date lettered on the back, the whole forming a manuscript work of great value and unique appearance.

It was, therefore, with great cordiality and unanimity that the following resolution was passed by the Society :

“Resolved, That the thanks of the New Jersey Historical Society be presented to Henry Stevens, Esq., now in London, for his discrimination, good judgment and fidelity in the selection and arrangement of his Index of the Colonial Documents of New Jersey, and that a copy of this resolution, duly authenticated, be transmitted to him by the Secretary.”

Further additions, subsequently received, brought the work to a satisfactory completion, and the claims of the Society upon the favorable consideration of the Legislature, were at last acknowledged at the session of 1852, so far as to lead to an authorized subscription for copies of the Index, when printed, to the amount of five hundred dollars ; but it was not until the 19th January, 1854, that the publication of the volume as the Fifth of the “Collections” of the Society was duly authorized : and at the ensuing session, in May, the Committee on Publications reported that they “had taken incipient steps towards the publication of the Analytical Index to the New Jersey Colonial Documents, and had intrusted the publication of the volume to Mr. W. A. Whitehead, the Corresponding Secretary. The Committee coincided in opinion with Mr. Stevens, through whose agency the Index in its form was secured, that the value of the work will be much enhanced by making it refer as well to documents in America, as to those in the English State Paper Office ; and by introducing notes explanatory or illustrative that may be required to elucidate any of the papers. Some time and considerable labor, consequently, would have to be expended in the preparation of the volume. It would relieve the Editor from considerable trouble, and facilitate the publication, were members of the Society, and all others, having documents or rare pamphlets in their possession relating to the Colonial history of New Jersey, to furnish him with lists embodying the dates of the documents, and a succinct analysis of the contents of each."

The general appeal for aid contained in this extract from the Committee's report not having secured the desired co-operation, the Editor prepared a Circular which was widely distributed through the State, copies being addressed to all Clerks of Counties and towns, as well as other officials, besides individuals who were known to have manuscripts in their possession, setting forth the views and wishes of the Society ; but failing to elicit any information excepting from one or two sources, the following additional circular was sent out ; and it is here inserted, in the hope that it may yet be of service, and that at some future time a supplemental volume may be published containing the wished-for information. :

New Jersey Historical Society.

NEWARK, July 4th, 1854.

SIR,—From information I have received in answer to my previous circular, I am led to believe that some of the gentlemen to whom it was addressed, have misunderstood its purport, and having in their possession papers, documents, or records, only of a local or restricted character, have presumed that such did not come within the scope of my inquiries, inasmuch as they did not refer to the general history or political organization of the State "as a whole."

The history of New Jersey in all its fulness is yet to be written, and no unimportant part of the materials for it, that yet exist, are those very local annals and records in which it is thought nothing can be found in any way illustrating our colonial era. A little reflection, I am certain, will bring the conviction that such a conclusion is erroneous. Take, for example, the records of a County. Slight peculiarities in the mode of administering the laws, in the appointment of officers, &c., that may be discovered as having prevailed in any section of the then colony, or any circumstance of note affecting individuals or parties (how much oftentimes, for example, does a single trial affect public opinion and laws for years thereafter ?) may have had an influence coextensive with the whole of New Jersey ; so that, although at first a matter may have concerned only a single county or town, it became in time a matter of great public interest. The bearing of County Records, therefore, cannot be regarded by any means as confined to the district of country with which they are particularly connected, and it becomes in consequence important to know their character and extent.

The same remarks apply to Town Records, and to Parish or Church Registers, serving as they do to point out important changes in communities, their progress in civilization, education and morality, and the condition of the population at particular periods; information, which is absolutely essential to the historian, who would present a truthful picture of the past, or rightly derive from its teachings the instruction needed for the present and the future.

It is not to be expected, that each document, in a public depository, can be particularly specified, but a favor would be conferred upon the Society could you furnish me with a description, as particular as circumstances will permit, of the Records in your charge, of dates prior to the adoption of the Constitution of the United States; giving—

The number of volumes of each kind, and how designated, whether Court Records, (and if so, of what courts,) Wills, Deeds, Registers of Births, Deaths and Marriages, &c., with the dates covered by each volume.

The volumes or documents, which may refer to particular townships, churches, congregations or precincts; their character, dates, &c.

Any documents, such as assessments, valuations, and other statistics, serving to throw light upon the condition and progress of the County, or any portion of it, at any time or during any period.

To do this will doubtless require an expenditure of time and occasion you some trouble, but I can only urge you to undertake it by using with you the argument I used with myself, on concluding to perform the more laborious task assigned to me by the Society; which is, that the State demands of those who love it—who venerate its past spotless history, and estimate aright its present and future advantages of position and resources as in a great measure connected with that history,—that they do all in their power to rescue from oblivion every fact and circumstance illustrative of its progress, or calculated to present it in its true light to the other States and to the world. The work, in connection with which the foregoing inquiries are propounded, may be made, if my exertions are properly seconded, the foundation for researches which must redound to the public benefit in many ways.

It is with such sentiments and such aims that I venture to ask your co-operation.

Very respectfully, Sir,

Your obedient servant,

W. A. WHITEHEAD,

Corresponding Secretary New Jersey Hist. Soc.

This circular was responded to, in a way to advance the work, only by Mr. SAMUEL H. CONGAR of Newark—who voluntarily assumed the task of furnishing a summary of the Records in the office of the Clerk of Essex County :—Mr. JONATHAN HAND, Clerk of Cape May County ;—and Rev. RICHARD WEBSTER of Mauch Chunk ; the Clerks of Camden and Monmouth County and of the Township of Woodbridge, and the Secretary of State ; politely expressing their willingness to submit the contents of their offices for the examination of the Editor.

Disappointed, but not discouraged, he essayed to secure some action by the Legislature which would secure to the State a uniform and proper system for the keeping and preservation of the records and documents in all the public offices, while at the same time the information sought to render this work complete would be obtained. That some more perfect system is called for, or rather, that system should be introduced where it is now almost entirely wanting, cannot be denied.* There are many important offices whose recorded minutes or proceedings are deficient, in consequence of incumbents frequently presuming the books used during their terms of service to be private property, which they had a right to retain on relinquishing their offices, or from their neglect in not keeping proper records. Even some of the important and most confidential records of the State under the old Constitution are understood to be thus deficient from one or both of these causes. It is a matter of great public concernment ; and the propriety of the proposed measure was so manifest to Governor PRICE, that, in his message of 1856, he commended it, in appropriate terms, to the consideration of the legislature. The public prints also advocated its adoption at different times, but nothing definite was done until the session of 1857, when WILLIAM K. McDONALD, Esq., of Newark, brought the subject before the Assembly, of which he was a prominent member, in the following preamble and resolution :

Whereas the people of the State are deeply interested in the proper preservation and arrangement of the public records ; and whereas the manner of keeping and preserving said records is not now uniform or systematic in the different counties, leading to inconvenience and detriment to the public interests, therefore, Be it enacted :

That, in each of the Counties of the State, a Board of Commissioners be organized under the authority of the Governor, to consist of the Clerk of the County, the Prosecutor of the Pleas and two competent citizens to be selected by the Governor, for the purpose of inquiring into the extent and condition of the Records of each county, and of the measures taken for their preservation : and that each Board of Commissioners report to the Secretary of State on or before the first December next the result of their examinations, particularly as to the number of volumes of each kind of records or documents, whether wills, deeds, registers of marriages, proceedings of Courts, &c., with the dates covered by each : the number of volumes or documents referring to particular townships, churches, congregations or precincts, with their dates ; and what documents, such as assessments, valuations, maps and other statistics, throwing light upon the condition and progress of the county or any portion of it at any period, of which they may obtain information ; and that the Secretary of State, on the receipt of said reports from the different counties, cause a report to the Legislature to be prepared and printed, giving the result of said examinations, with such suggestions and recommendations as may lead most effectually to the introduction of a uniform system for the preservation of the public records of the State.

The measure having been appropriately presented by Mr. McDONALD, this resolution passed the House of Assembly unanimously, but in the Senate, through some undefined apprehensions of the expense that might attend the inquiry, (which might have been guarded against by an express provision)—there were only three members willing to record their votes in the affirmative, and the resolution was consequently lost.

Such have been the difficulties attending the attempt to carry out the wishes of the Society, and the Editor consequently must ask for a lenient judgment upon his labors. If the intentions of the Society in committing the work to his editorial supervision have not been fully realized, he nevertheless trusts that he returns it to them not entirely without additional value. References to nearly eleven hundred different documents will be found inserted in their proper places, and at least five times that number has passed through his hands while prosecuting his researches ; and as the Index proper is the portion of the volume for which the Society is indebted to Mr. STEVENS, the Editor's additions thereto are distinguished by being contained within brackets. Throughout, the arrangement is strictly chronological with reference to the date of the document, and not to the events with which they may sometimes be subsequently connected.

All the manuscripts belonging to the Society are not noticed. Many of them have been printed in their series of "Proceedings ;" the papers of Governor Lewis Morris, with few exceptions, have been published in their "Collections ;" and as others, like the manuscript books of Samuel Smith, would naturally be examined, and are scarcely susceptible of being analyzed in the mode adopted in the Index, it was deemed unnecessary to increase the size of the present volume by particular references thereto. Most of the other manuscripts described, are either in the valuable collection of Miss Rutherford, of Eastridge, near Newark, or among those in the possession of the Editor. The "Belcher Papers," referred to, are in the Library of the Historical Society, being copies of such as related to New Jersey, among those belonging to the Historical Society of Massachusetts ; the selection having been made by the Editor in person, under the authority of the Society. The Catalogue of Printed Works will be found to contain a table of the contents of the Society's publications ; and, for the first time, the titles of the principal publications, exclusive of public documents, that may be consulted with advantage, have been brought together for the information of the student of our early history. Lists of the different Editions of the Laws, and of the Earlier Newspapers of the State, are also appended.

The established price of copying, in the State Paper Office of England, is four pence sterling for each folio of seventy-two words ; the cost of any document can therefore be readily ascertained by referring to the number of folios it contains, as stated in the Index. It was not thought necessary to give the length of the documents procurable on this side of the Atlantic.

Whenever biographical notices or references are introduced, they will be found generally in connection with the first allusion to the respective individuals.

[Col. Quarry's name in connection with the Colonies is first met with as Governor of South Carolina in 1684, and again in 1690, having during part of the intermediate time acted as Secretary of the Province. When he became a resident of the middle Colonies is not known. His letters to the Board of Trade and other Officials, a number of which may be seen in the New York Col. Docts., indicate the possession of more than ordinary ability, and the existence of certain relations to the Board of Trade, which some have thought warranted the supposition, that he was a secret emissary or spy of the Government. The fact that he had at one time a seat in the Councils of five of the Colonies—New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia,—gives some color to the supposition. (See Smith's New Jersey, 231 Note.) He was Judge of the Admiralty Court in New York, as well as Pennsylvania. [Printed in N. Y. Col. Docts., Vol. IV., p. 1002. Richard Ingoldsby arrived in New York in January, 1691, in the possession of some authority, under which he claimed the Government from Leisler. On the death of Governor Sloughter, July 23, 1691, he was declared (then styled Major) Commander-in-Chief, and as such, in 1692, commanded an expedition into the Seneca country, to resist a threatened irruption into the Province by the French, under the Governor of Canada; and in June of that year formed a treaty with the Indians at Albany. He was superseded on the arrival of Governor Fletcher, in August, 1692, and seems to have returned to England. On the appointment of Lord Cornbury, he was made Lieut.-Governor, and arrived in Virginia in January, 1704, but in consequence of sickness did not get to New York until March. Although a strenuous supporter of Cornbury's administration, he at one time incurred his displeasure by opening despatches in his absence, and pre-suming to act as Governor in New York when his principal was in New Jersey. He continued Lieut. Governor under Lord Lovelace, and the Government devolved upon him at the death of that nobleman in July, 1709. On the arrival of his successor, Ingoldesby disappeared, from the stage, and his subsequent career is unknown. Smith, the Historian of New York, styles him "a heavy man," "of no great ability," and probably what influence he exercised in the Provinces of New York and New Jersey, grew out of his official station entirely, strengthened possibly by the favor his views of the prerogatives of the Crown secured him from those in authority at home. Smith's N. Y., pp. 105, 140, 170. N. Y. Col. Docts., III., pp. 791, 840; IV., pp. 1000, 1091, 1162, &c.]

being for back salaries, expenses incurred in travelling, &c. They having sued him for the whole amount of his indebtedness, £10,333.6.0, without allowing or making deductions for the amounts due to him which came to £2,414.14.6, from individuals, besides the amount due by the Provinces as above, "besides what I have been arrested for"—he says—"my other debts come to about £1400, so that it appears plainly that they have arrested me for £7,918.11 more than they can demand, which can be intended for nothing but to make a noise in England." This was sent to his father, and is entitled his defence. He alludes to the charges of bribery, of misappropriation of public money, &c., and wishes to make it appear that he was innocent of every charge. [The Records of the Eastern Proprietors, notwithstanding the surrender of the Government in 1701, continued in the possession of their Register until 1715, when James Smith, Secretary of the Province, was appointed Register, the effect not being foreseen, that the latter office would become lost in the former, and that the records, the possession of which they had retained, notwithstanding the exertion of Lord Cornbury to dispossess them, would be considered the property of the Province. Such, however, was the result, and the Proprietors, experiencing great inconvenience in consequence, it was at this time proposed that copies should be made of all such documents as referred to their affairs, for their exclusive use, the originals remaining with the Secretary of the Province. 1746--47.

[Jan. 27. London. Ferd. John Paris to Ja's Alexander—Had retained the Att. and Solie'r Generals for the East Jersey Proprietors against Elizabethtown people, and also against New York, in relation to the boundary line—Believes no alteration has been made in the standing instructions to the Governors of Colonies relating to the interest in the soil—the commission to Mr. (Jonathan) Belcher (to be Governor of New Jersey) had been lying in the Secretary of State's office many months, "fee bound"—five blanks had been left in Mr. Belcher's commission for the names of five Councillors, under the supposition that the gentlemen appointed in Sept. 1745 (see p. 194) did not desire to sit as Councillors, inasmuch as their mandamuses had never been taken out, or the fees (£22 2s. 6d. each) paid—under the advice of the Messrs. Penn had taken them out—paid £110 12s. 6d. for them, and had their names inserted in the commission—had Mr. Belcher had any interest, or stood well at the offices, by paying the fees for his commission he might have had five Councillors put in of his own selection—difficulties in the way of Mr. Alexander's name being presented for one of the Council, it having just been discovered that he had not been named in Gov'r Morris's instructions, and therefore, from 1738 to 1746, had held an anomalous position, presuming that he was of the Council, when, in reality, he was not—to bring the matter up, by presenting his name, would cause inquiries difficult to answer—Mr. Belcher's Council stood as suggested by Mr. Alexander, excepting that Charles Read was one instead of himself, he having been recommended by Mr. Belcher, as well as Ebenezer Large and——Shinn. Original. Rutherford MSS.]

[Feb. 10. London. Ferd. John Paris to James Alexander—Had discovered that the omission of Mr. Alexander's name in Gov'r Morris's instructions (see letter Jan. 27, 1746-47) arose from carelessness of the Clerks of the Board of Trade—had brought the matter in such a manner before that body, that in order to prevent the circumstances being detailed in a petition to the King, they had sent for the "fee bound" commission and instructions of Mr. Belcher, "tore the first sheet, re-engrossed it with your name in its place amongst the Councillors, and consequently Charles Read's out"—Mr. B. of so little consequence that he was never sent for or spoken to on the subject—does not know when he will be able to pay his fees and obtain his papers—in these proceedings had received no aid from Messrs. Mico, Knapp and others of the West Jersey Society, whom he had found as "ignorant, cold, and unnatural persons" as he had ever spoken to—Mr. A. must not depend upon them for any assistance in any matter—had not communicated with Mr. Belcher about the Province, and gives his reasons, confidentially, based upon the poor opinion entertained of him—treats of his character at some length—Belcher had been attempting, ineffectually, to have his instructions so drawn as to authorize the passage of paper money bills, irrespective of the Royal approval.

Refers in a postscript to a suggestion of Gov'r Morris's, in a letter dated Jan. 28, 1744-45, which he had seen—that showed the Lords think it advisable to remove Mr. Alexander from the Council on account of his non-residence—he would recommend Richard Saltar to fill the vacancy. See "Papers of Gov'r Morris," p. 220. Original. Rutherford MSS.]

[Feb. 13. London. Ferd. John Paris to James Alexander—Mr. Belcher, for the first time in five months, had called at the proper office to inquire about his papers, and deposited £200 to pay the fees—supposition that the money had been obtained through the agency of his brother-in-law (Mr. Richard Partridge) among the Quakers of Yorkshire, upon representations of the benefit derived by the Quakers in Massachusetts during the administration of Mr. B. there, and what might be expected from him in New Jersey—would keep the ministers in mind of the affairs of New Jersey from time to time—"if you can help or succour yourselves, pray do immediately, without waiting for relief from him, which will come very late, if at all"—if sending over forces was desired, he did not think their great men would consent to it, as they can neither spare the men nor bear the expense. Original. Rutherford MSS.]

Feb. 13. New York. Letter from Ja's Alexander and R. H. J. have dared, in so open a manner, to trample on their laws and civil Gov't—from Mr. Nevill's speeches not having had more effect, thinks the Assembly must be "very ignorant, or worse"—had had several conversations with Mr. Belcher on the subject, who seemed uneasy at the opposition to the King's authority, and thought the Proprietors should petition for "a force" to be sent to the Province—apprehends that on the arrival of the Governor, a new Assembly will be chosen, composed of them who will unite with him—he seems much to desire to put a stop to the irregular proceedings—Mr. Paris commended for his diligence—his brother's lands in New Jersey were left, by will, to his brother Richard, who was inclined to sell them—if a good offer could be obtained, would be disposed to sell all received through their father—Colonial matters not attended to "without being solicited as a private cause." [4th Mo. (June) 3. London. Richard Partridge to Richard Smith, jr., Burlington—The resentment concerning the riots continued to be felt by the Board of Trade—some talk of ordering forces to the Province—state of the paper currency bill—had recently discovered in the Council office "divers old writings" concerning the trial in East New Jersey in 1695, between James Fullerton, plaintiff, and Jeffrey Jones, defendant, on a suit in ejectment, which he thought bore upon the matters then in dispute—sent copies of several of the papers (see Bill in Chancery, p. 44, &c., and Answer, p. 29, for the circumstances of this case)—suggested the propriety of a trial being submitted to in the Province, and should the Proprietors succeed, have the case carried up to the King in Council to try the validity of the letters—he would attend to the matter, and was not without hopes of securing their object—this was a much more honorable course for the people to pursue, than by tumultuous proceedings incurring the danger of being put down by force of arms—the course they had pursued was "disgraceful, and very greatly resented by the ministry." Copy. Rutherford MSS.]

June 4 and 5. New Jersey. Extracts of two letters from New Jersey to Mr. Paris, relating to the riots and disturbances in the [June 7. London. Ferd. John Paris to James Alexander, New York—Had forgotten to state in his previous letter of 26th May, that the Lords of Trade thought Governor Belcher had exceeded his powers in passing an Act to pardon treason, and had offered, if he believed it would conciliate the Assembly, to grant permission to issue “a little more paper money,” which he considered a great condescension, as the Board had just introduced a bill into Parliament for the suppression of all paper money in America—Lord Halifax in favour of sending a strong force to the Province sufficient to quell all tumults—Mr. Penn had interested himself very much in the matter of the riots, but the West Jersey Society had done nothing—question as to the expense to be incurred should forces be sent—the bill for the suppression of paper money in the Colonies laid aside—accounts to be laid before Parliament at the next session of the amount issued by each—this matter had been driven on by “Alderman Baker, assisted by a hot-headed, violent man, one Crockett, a Carolina merchant, and assisted also by Horace Walpole.” Original duplicate. Rutherford MSS.]

[June 22. Newark. David Ogden to Chief Justice Morris, New York—Aaron Ball, one of the rioters in prison, anxious to see him—Ball and several others having expressed their willingness to submit to the laws, he suggests the propriety of holding a special court in Essex County, presuming that all, or nearly all of the rioters, would voluntarily present themselves for trial. Original copy. Rutherford MSS.]

Sent to Mr. Alexander by a private hand (who was the bearer of the original) for his consideration, with the view of obtaining his sanction before forwarding it to its destination. For Mr. Alexander's answer, see below. For notice of David Ogden, see Field's Provincial Courts, pp. 182-188.]

[June 23. New York. James Alexander to David Ogden, Newark, expressing his unwillingness, under the circumstances he details, to consent to try any of the rioters by a jury of the County of Essex—if all New Jersey should join the rioters, it would not induce him to advise such a course without directions from England, and he doubted not, should they all do so, the King could, and would, restore the Government and laws in New Jersey, and make lasting examples of those who had rebelled against them—should a sentence of high treason be pronounced against the rioters, the judgment could never be carried out in Essex County. Copy. Rutherford MSS.]

[July 4. London. Ferd. John Paris to James Alexander, New York—Details the progress made in bringing documents referring to the rioters, &c., to the notice of the Government—the difficulties in the way of a hearing—Lord Halifax determined that the fault shall not lie at his door, and should the matter be much longer delayed, would cause a representation to be laid before His Majesty from the Board of Trade—the Board had publicly declared that they saw through the artifice of the rioters in promulgating the idea that the disorders arose out of a private dispute with Mr. A. and Chief Justice Morris—they approved of the reply made by him and the Chief Justice to the proposal of the rioters (to be tried in Essex Co., see 1749, June 22d)—their present declared opinion that a new Governor should be sent over, and some troops transferred to the Province from Nova Scotia—asserts his belief that the Governor had deceived Mr. Alexander and his friends—a letter had been received from the Governor, stating that the disturbances in New Jersey were grown too great for him to quell, and praying the assistance of the Government—the communication not satisfactory to the Board—attributed to information communicated by Mr. Partridge of the displeasure of the Board—had been asked by the Board the cause of the riots, which he had answered in a written document. John Paris to James Alexander—Had that day attended a meeting of the Board of Trade, to which he had been summoned—inquiry made of him as to the reunion with New York being an adequate relief in the estimation of the Council, &c.—answering in the affirmative—a preparatory report was being prepared by the Board—the Acts for pardoning the rioters, staying proceedings, &c., had been declared by the Lord Chancellor Acts of treason in the Governor, Council and Assembly, the assumption of such powers robbing the Crown of its prerogatives—the Lords of Trade had employed the whole day in reading out of their books the account of Bacon's rebellion in Virginia in 1675, and what was then done—Bacon, by actual force, compelled the passage of an Act to pardon the treason then committed, yet the King sent over persons with power to pardon, and who really did pardon the Governor, Council and Assembly—the treason of passing that Act, "tho' under force"—Mr. Partridge had seen his packet of 19th put in the letter bag at the coffee house, so, if not received, immediate notice to be given him. David Ogden to James Alexander, Perth Amboy—The drift of the rioters and their friends to represent that they hold their lands under Indian titles, and that it was to defend their property thus acquired, against the Proprietors, that they entered into the riots, &c.,—proof could be given that such was not the case—the bearer of the letter, Daniel Person, (Pierson?) well-informed on the subject, would testify that three-fifths hold their lands under proprietary titles; one-fifth have no pretensions to any title, and these were the chief destroyers of timber, and the other fifth hold under Indian titles; but not more than one-third first settled their lands under an Indian title, and the other two-thirds purchased the Indian title within a few years then past—the examination of Mr. Person by the Council recommended. John Paris, London—In answer to letter of Oct. 8th, 1754—the New York Council on 17th Dec. had made a report on the subject of the boundary, advising vigorous measures to secure possession of as much of the disputed territory as possible—should this be carried out an actual war upon the frontier would ensue—his son, at the request of Mr. Pownall, had drawn up a “brief state of the dispute,” [see above, Dec.,] with an illustrative map, a copy of which he transmits—as he cannot much longer expect, as he has “grown old,” to take such an active interest in the affairs of the East Jersey Proprietors, the chief care of them would devolve upon his son and Gov'r Morris—as he, Mr. Paris, was likewise getting “well advanced in years,” suggests the employment of some competent gentleman to assist him in conducting their affairs in England, in order that an acquaintance with them might be acquired in time—no prospect of a speedy termination of the controversy with New York—list of papers transmitted to him, eighteen in number. Nov. 13. Burlington. Letter from Gov'r Franklin to the Board of Trade—Received no instructions to carry the Stamp Act into execution—transmits a copy of the Minutes of Council, with their advice on the subject—the seditious spirit from the neighbouring Colonies is beginning to appear in New Jersey—the people of that Province are sure to follow the example set to them by their neighbours—at the last Supreme Court only criminal matters were transacted—the lawyers have entered into an agreement not to act under the Stamp Law. S. P. O., B. T. New Jersey. Vol. 9, K. 51. Letter, original, 6 folios; Enclosures, copies, 25 do.: 31 folios.

[To the members of the Bar, the distinction is to be conceded of having been the first to adopt a systematic opposition to the use of stamps in New Jersey. At that day the lawyers, as a body, were perhaps equal, if not superior, in talents and character to those who at any subsequent period have upheld the honor of the State and of their profession; and although many of them, rather than countenance a resort to arms to procure a redress of grievances, eventually abandoned the cause of the colonists, yet at the period under consideration, they were deeply interested in the matter at issue, and warmly opposed to the encroachments of power and ministerial influence.

The unhappy state in which the colonies were thrown by the passage of the Stamp Act, had induced several of the leading men of the profession to call a general meeting at Perth Amboy, in September, 1765, (the arrival of the stamp papers being then daily looked for,) in order to consult upon the adoption of such measures as should indicate their true opinion to the people of the Province, while, at the same time, they prevented any improper popular commotions adverse to the authority of the Government. The meeting took place; and, after a full discussion of the act and its anticipated effects, those present determined, without a dissenting voice, that they would not as lawyers, make any use of the stamps for any purpose or under any circumstances; and this was understood to be likewise the intention of most of the gentlemen of the bar who were absent. This was certainly the wisest course they could have adopted;—it prevented any immediate collision with the Government;—it called for no violation of official oaths, or resignation by the functionaries of the different courts: and although it would inevitably operate much to their pecuniary detriment, yet they had the satisfaction of knowing that it rendered the stamps entirely useless as a source of revenue to the Crown.

The day after this meeting, (Sept. 20, 1765,) all the practitioners were desired to attend the Chief Justice. On their doing so, that officer alluded to a report which had become current, of his having solicited and exerted himself to obtain the situation of stamp distributor for the colony; and stated that the impropriety of the act was a sufficient refutation of the charge; but, in order that there might be no doubt on the subject, he declared upon his honor that he had in no way attempted to obtain the office.

He then inquired of them whether, should the stamps arrive and be placed at Burlington by, or after, the first of November, as was expected, they would, as practitioners, agree to purchase them for the necessary proceedings in the law? This they answered in the negative, in conformity to their previous resolution, stating that they would rather have their private interests give way to public opinion:—protesting at the same time against all riotous and indecent behavior, which they would discountenance; by every means in their power preserving order, while by an absolute refusal to make use of stamps, and other quiet methods, they would endeavor to obtain a repeal of the law. They were then asked if it was their opinion, should the act go into operation, that the duties could possibly be paid in gold and silver? This was also answered in the negative, a conviction being expressed that such payment could not be made even for one year.

The Chief Justice then inquired, in the third place, if in their opinion—as the Act required the Governor and Chief Justice to superintend the distribution—he should be obliged to act as distributor, should the Governor appoint him to that office? In answer to this, they advised him not to accept the appointment, the Governor not being authorized by the Act to appoint, and if he had that power, he could not enforce acceptance;—and moreover they deemed the office incompatible with the official station he already held.*

What a commentary is this proceeding of the Chief Justice upon the wisdom of the English Ministry! How illustrative, either of their ignorance or infatuation, that the head of the judiciary of the Province—a commissioned officer of the Crown—independent of the people—and one who continued loyal to the King throughout the struggle, should be so convinced of the oppressive character of the Act, as willingly to excuse himself from putting it in execution, even should it be in opposition to the Governor!

The communication of these opinions and resolutions drew forth the warmest approbation from the public, but it was to be expected that such an entire cessation of all legal proceedings would not only occasion great confusion in the transaction of business generally, but also, excite to the adoption of more energetic measures to frustrate the operation of the detested Act, which might leave the people at liberty to pursue their usual vocations untrammelled by its provisions. Endeavors were soon made to transact the business of the courts as usual, and censures were publicly cast upon them for refusing so to do. They were well sustained, however, in their determination.

It was stated that, to the lasting honor of the lawyers of New Jersey it had been, and would be said they had set the example as the most determined opposers of the oppressive Acts of Parliament. Some of the most learned and judicious had declared that the Act was of such a nature, and so curiously fabricated, it would execute itself, and not an American patriot ever fancied that the Provinces could have given such spirited and universal opposition. An expectation of submission had continued almost universal down to the eve of that fatal day destined for the commencement of their slavery; and every city, town, and village upon this vast continent resounded with the knell of departing liberty. The merchants could not think of venturing their fortunes in a vessel not protected by a stamped passport,—not a person who held an office under the crown could think of losing his appointment, and thereby perhaps the only means of subsisting himself and family, by opposing an act framed under the direction of the King's Ministry,—not a farmer who could bear to think of taking a conveyance for lands without a stamp, when his estate for want thereof was declared void; nor would he offer to try an action at law without the same prerequisites, lest his recovery should be illegal; in short, the caution of the merchants, the fear of the public officers, and the ignorance of the common people would undoubtedly have introduced the stamped papers, had not the professors of the law (through whose hands most of them must have passed) at that instant stood forth and declared they would not receive them. The colonists were urged to continue in their present state till some decisive intelligence should be received, not to call upon the courts to open, lest the public peace should be broken, nor contradict their public petitions for relief, by attempting it with their own hands before it should be denied by the mother country.*

There were, however, among the members of the Bar those who, either from pecuniary or sinister motives, were in favor of ultra measures, and by some of them it was deemed advisable to hold another meeting for the purpose of consultation; this convened at New Brunswick on the 13th of February, 1766. The title of "Sons of Liberty" first adopted at this crisis by the freemen of Connecticut, was soon assumed by the active citizens of New Jersey. The proceedings of individuals and public bodies were subjected to the surveillance of these associated patriots, receiving their censure or approbation as circumstances might warrant, although in a more limited degree than was subsequently the case;—the approaching convention of lawyers was consequently not overlooked.

On the appointed day, several hundreds of the Sons of Liberty from Woodbridge and Piscataway, joined by deputies from the western part of the Province, presented themselves at New Brunswick, and handed in to the gentlemen of the bar who were there assembled, a written and "united request that they should immediately proceed to business as usual without stamps, and use their influence to open the courts of justice."† After due deliberation, the majority of the gentlemen agreed, in order "to preserve that happy state of peace and tranquillity which has, by the blessing of God, hitherto been maintained in this Province of New Jersey, to desist from their practice till the first day of April next, and if they receive no accounts from the Parliament before the said first day of April, they will, in such case, begin their practice as usual, or sooner, if earlier accounts are received." They also appointed two of their number to assure the Sons of Liberty, in the name of the whole, that, unless the Stamp Act was suspended or repealed, they would join in opposition to it with their lives and fortunes. The course adopted met with the approval of the assembled patriots,—thanks were returned, and hopes expressed that such an example might be imitated by every gentleman of the profession on the continent.

The subsequent repeal of the Stamp Act put an end to all further proceedings; but the firmness, disinterestedness, prudence and patriotism already exhibited by the lawyers of that day, deserve to be recorded.

* Vide an able article in New York Gazette of February 20th, 1766, in answer to a letter signed A. B., published in the same paper January 30th, containing matter of the character referred to in the text.

† A draft of this written request made at the time, and apparently the rough one from which the perfect copy was made, is in the possession of the Editor of this volume. It is on the same sheet, with an imperfect copy of the resolution, agreed to by the lawyers, indicating the exercise of some influence, or direction, by one of the members of the bar, over the proceedings of the Sons of Liberty; for from their juxtaposition, their origin must have been the same. If the papers of the day are to be believed, some of the lawyers (particularly those of Elizabethtown) did soon after resume their business without stamps.]

Hillsborough—The Board of Trade will probably make the same objections to the New Jersey Act of 1767 for quartering the troops as they did to the former one—the only difference is about the mode, not the essentials, and he, the Gov'r, was obliged either to give his consent, or to let the army be unprovided with the necessaries required by Act of Parliament—the public papers are being copied—Had dissolved the Assembly, and issued writs for a new election, returnable the 25th of June. Aug. 16. Whitehall. Letter from Secr. Hillsborough to Gov’r Franklin—Received his dispatches from one to five, and laid them before the King—the King is concerned to find the Assembly of New Jersey questioning the power and authority of Parliament to enact laws binding upon the Colonies—the entire ignorance of what was passing in the Assembly, concerning the letter from the Massachusetts Bay, “betrays a very blameable inattention” of Gov’r Franklin to his duty, and “indicates a disposition that does not correspond with those principles which ought to be the rule of your (Gov’r F.’s) conduct”—the practice of laying the Secretary’s letters, &c., before the Assembly, disapproved [See N. Y. Col. Docts., Vol. VIII. p. 100]—transmits an Order of Council disallowing the Act passed in 1767, for making provision for quartering the King’s troops, and conveys His Majesty’s disapprobation of Gov’r Franklin’s conduct in assenting to a law contrary to an Act of Parliament—hopes that the petition resolved upon by the Assembly will not be sent up, as it must be rejected. June 7. Whitehall. Letter from the Earl of Dartmouth to Gov'r Franklin—Every intelligence received from him will be kept secret—it is evident now that the appointment of the Delegates to the Congress could not have been prevented by any measures—received an unfavorable account of a conflict between the King's troops and some of the Provincials, but receiving no intelligence from Gen. Gage, no reliance can be placed upon the truth of it. S. P. O. Am. & W. Indies. Vol. 177. Draft. 4 folios.

See Journals of Congress from 1774 to 1788, Vol. I. ; Force's Amer. Arch., &c.]

July 12. Whitehall. Letter from the Earl of Dartmouth to Gov'r Franklin—His speech to the Assembly of New Jersey on the 16th of May is highly approved—the Assembly felt the force of it, only withheld their concurrence from the fear of the consequences that would follow from the appearance of separating from the other Colonies—the notice which the Assembly has taken of the publication in the Parliamentary Register of one of his letters, is illiberal and unjust. S. P. O. Am. & W. Indies. Vol. 177. Draft. 4 folios.

Oct. 3. Perth Amboy. Letter from Gov'r Franklin to the Earl of Dartmouth—The matters are now carried so far that unless some propositions should come from Great Britain, there seems little probability of a change of conduct among the people—suggests the expediency of his speech being published in England—suspects that his despatches were opened either in London, Falmouth, or some intermediate office—John Adams avowed that the letters published in

Draper's Mass. Gazette to Gen. Gage were his—Lord Stirling, (Mr. Alexander,) one of the Council of New Jersey, accepted a Colonel's Commission from the Provincial Congress—Samuel Smith, Esq., on account of his age and infirmities, has resigned his seat at the Board, but no gentleman as yet would consent to be nominated—the Courts are still open—the Council advised calling the Assembly on the 15th of next month, but there is a doubt if they will meet. Nov. 1. Perth Amboy. Letter from Gov'r Franklin to the Earl of Dartmouth—Some of the despatches were miscarried—by order of the Continental Congress, two battalions are to be raised in New Jersey—unless the army under Schuyler or Washington be defeated, there seems every probability of the inhabitants following the Congress implicitly—sends some newspapers containing various intelligence—one Dr. Church arrested by Washington, and accused of acting as a spy in his camp—encloses copy of Dr. Church's letter to Major Kane at Boston, intercepted at Rhode Island, and delivered to Washington—the fate of transport from Boston to New York—the uncertainty of conveyance of letters prevents writing more particularly. Whitehead MSS.]

Jan. 5. Perth Amboy. Secret and confidential letter from Governor Franklin to the Earl of Dartmouth—Several petitions presented to the Assembly to discourage any attempt to promote an independency of Great Britain—majority of people in New Jersey and Pennsylvania averse to it—danger seems to be that the design will be carried by degrees—Assembly granted the usual support to Government, but they evaded complying with His Majesty's requis-tion—their intention to petition the King on the present unhappy disputes prevented by a Committee of the General Congress at Philadelphia—has reason to believe that some of the Council are strongly inclined to favor the measures of Congress—two Judges and one Justice of the Peace have been seized for refusing to sign associations, and speaking against proceedings of Congress—William Stirling, commonly called Earl of Stirling, he has suspended from the Council—generally believed that Congress will have assistance from France, if not from Spain—French fleet expected in the St. Lawrence, and French troops have already arrived in the West Indies—the Tories (as they are called) in Sussex County have furnished themselves with arms—two of the New Jersey Delegates to Congress have resigned their seats, &c. APPENDIX B.

CATALOGUE OF BOOKS, PAMPHLETS, AND OTHER PUBLICATIONS REFERRING IN WHOLE, OR IN PART, TO NEW JERSEY DURING THE COLONIAL PERIOD, EXCLUSIVE OF THE PUBLIC DOCUMENTS OF THE STATE.

*. * This Catalogue might have been extended by the insertion of the titles of a number of controversial pamphlets, sermons, and other publications connected with events of a temporary or limited interest, as well as of Journals of Travellers; but it is believed that all of any importance are enumerated. There are, of course, matters referred to in the Legislative Journals, Colonial Records, and Historical Society Collections of both New York and Pennsylvania, which have special relation to New Jersey: the New York Documents in particular, as will be seen by the many references in these pages, are exceedingly valuable. The newspapers of the times constitute a mine of historical wealth that can always be worked to advantage, and other, usual sources of information, it was not thought necessary to specify more particularly. There are some few works in the list relating to events of the present century, which it was thought advisable to insert for their rarity or intrinsic importance.

APPENDIX E.

NOTICES OF SOME OF THE PUBLIC RECORDS, &c.

MR. SAMUEL H. CONGAR, the Librarian of the Historical Society, reports the following Records to be in the office of the Clerk of the County of Essex:—

“Records of the Quarter Sessions and Common Pleas from April, 1709, to the present time—62 volumes.

“* * In Books F. & H. is a record for Essex County, of certificates concerning killed and wounded soldiers, kept in pursuance of an “Act for the relief and support of married and disabled soldiers and seamen, and of the widows and children of such as fall in battle, &c.,” passed June 10th, 1773.

“‘A Book of Deeds—B, 1728’—apparently recorded in pursuance of an Act passed in 1713, which was disallowed in 1721; re-enacted in 1723, and again disallowed in 1731. Book A is probably lost.

“A regular Series of Volumes of Deeds and Conveyances (Book A having been missing since the destruction of the Court House by fire in 1835 or 6,) from Book B, 1793, to the present time—215 volumes.

“Books of Mortgages from 1765, in which year, June 20, the Act was passed relating to their registration, to the present time—85 volumes.

“A small Printed Book, in which are recorded the executions under which the Commissioners of Forfeited Estates sold the property of those who adhered to the royal cause in the Revolution.

“Records of Marriages from 1795 to the present time—but the law requiring their registration is not complied with as it should be.

“Four Road Books, A, C, D, E: the first two having been made or copied anew by order of the Freeholders and Justices some years ago—the first record of a road is in 1698.

“The Old Dockets of Justices are deposited with the Clerk. Manumitted Negroes or Slaves are noticed in some of the books, and also the Incorporation of Religious Societies.

“The Orphans’ Court Books commence about 1794. The Wills a little later.

"There are old volumes of laws at the Court House, the property of the County, among rubbish, from which the printed book of Executions, above mentioned, was extracted. Large boxes of old papers are in the Hall, and there may be manuscripts of some interest undiscovered, and if not burned or sold for the benefit of the County, something may yet be found by an exploring party composed of volunteers, (the only troops good for much in this cause,) under the command of Captains Patience and Perseverance.

"The Freeholders and Justice's Book, from 1735 to 1789, was recently recovered. It should have been in the custody of the Clerk of the Board, but was found in General Thomas Ward's garret. The books of other Counties may be extant in other garrets. In 1713-14 these Boards were first organized, and another older book is probably forever lost."

The Newark Town Records from the settlement down to 1833, are in a tolerable state of preservation, and have recently been transcribed at the expense of the City, with a view to their publication in a subsequent volume of the Society's "Collections."

The Parish Papers of Trinity Church, Newark, contain several interesting documents referring to the establishment and progress of that Congregation from 1736. Many of these were not known to exist by the Rev. M. H. Henderson, when his Centennial discourse was prepared in 1846, having since been rescued from the rubbish of a garret.

Copies of the Manuscripts of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, relating to the Colonies, are in the possession of the Rev. F. L. Hawks, D. D., of New York. They are full of interesting materials for the illustration of the establishment and progress of the Church of England polity and services in New Jersey. See Clark's "Church in the Colonies"—"Contributions to East Jersey History," p. 209, &c.

The Dutch Records, translated by Vanderkemp, in the Office of the Secretary of State, at Albany, New York, contain, in some of the volumes, references to New Jersey, while under the domination of the Dutch, which have not appeared in print.

WOODBRIDGE, Middlesex County.—The Town Book contains a large amount of varied information relative to the secular and theological history of the Town from 1668 to 1750, in tolerably regular order. From 1750 to 1799 the record is less complete. See "Contributions to the History of Perth Amboy and Surrounding Country." The Register of Births, Deaths and Marriages appears to be quite complete for several years after the settlement, and there are entries, although few in number, comparatively, of later date down to 1781. Some portions of the volume are, or were when seen by the writer, in a very dilapidated state.

The records of the First Presbyterian Church in the Town extend back to an early period.

PISCATAWAY, Middlesex County.—The Town Book contains a large amount of miscellaneous matter from 1675 to 1800. See "Contributions to the History of Perth Amboy and Surrounding Country." The Register of Births, Marriages and Deaths covers dates from 1676 to 1790. The Deaths do not appear to be recorded with much regularity after the first twenty years, and Marriages subsequently became less frequently entered.

MR. JONATHAN HAND, Clerk of Cape May County, thus reports in relation to the Records in his office:—

"The regular record of Deeds was commenced in 1785, but we have one old record of deeds commencing in 1694, and ending in 1726. Between the years 1726 and 1785 the deeds I suppose were recorded in the Secretary's Office for West Jersey, at Burlington, which records were subsequently removed to, and are now in the Office of the Secretary of State, Trenton. Our old record of Deeds above-mentioned (1694 to 1726) is called 'Liber A.'

"We have a few deeds recorded in another old book called 'Miscellany Book A.'"

(Mr. Hand very politely furnished the Editor with various extracts from this book, showing that it was a depository for Protests, Manumission Papers, Agreements, Deeds, &c., between 1559 and 1795.)

"Court and Miscellaneous Record.—Number 1, consisting of about two quires of foolscap unbound, contains Proceedings of Courts, Wills, Powers of Attorney, Ear-Marks, and in fact nearly or quite every thing which in those days were recorded; commencing January 10, 1692, and ending in 1698.

"Number 2 consists of about one quire of foolscap unbound, containing entries similar to those in Number 1, from 1698 to 1706.

"Number 3 consists of about one quire of letter paper, and contains the proceedings of Courts and Quarter Sessions, and Common Pleas, from 1720 to 1722.

"Number 4 consists of about one quire of foolscap, and contains proceedings from 1723 to 1735—the first Court, July 2, 1723, being held at the Presbyterian Meeting House.

"Number 5 is a book of about the same size, containing the proceedings from 1736 to 1739. The Courts were then held at 'the Baptist Meeting House.'

"Number 6 is an old unbound record of about three quires of foolscap, containing proceedings from 1740 to 1762.

"Number 7 is about the same size as No. 6, and contains proceedings from 1763 to 1773.

"From this time down the records refer only to suits in Court, and their proceedings begin to be recorded in a more correct and legal form."

The Editor regrets that, for reasons given in the Preface to this volume, similar information relative to the records of the other counties, has not been secured.
